

Get Involved - Research Projects

Exciting New Research in Autism

A new research study investigating mental health in people with autism is being launched today. The study is a collaboration between leading investigators at the Cerebra Centre for Neurodevelopmental Disorders at the University of Birmingham, Aston University, and leading UK autism research charity, Autistica.

For more information, click here

Researchers aim to recruit 5,000 autistic people, their families and carers to the 'Discover' research network by the end of 2017. To find out more and get involved please visit: <https://www.autistica.org.uk/get-involved/take-part-in-research>

Go Back